GREENWOOD VILLAGE, Colo. (Feb. 2, 2017) – As part of its efforts to provide members with the high-touch experience they receive in a branch through multiple digital channels, Bellco has appointed Razz Cortes-Maceda to the position of Vice President of Digital Strategy. With more than 16 years of experience in systems analysis, user experience, information architecture and human-computer interaction, Cortes-Maceda is charged with bringing Bellco’s people-intensive culture to the digital realm of products and services.

In her role, Cortes-Maceda will direct and implement Bellco’s digital strategy, as well as drive the creation of a comprehensive multi-channel framework – including Bellco’s mobile, web and social properties – to meet the ever-changing needs of members, who want the same personalized and interactive experience online as they have in a branch.

“My passion lies at the intersection of the personal and digital experiences people have with a company,” said Cortes-Maceda. “In my experience, a significant strategic focus on digital is typically reserved for larger enterprises, so the fact that Bellco has made a commitment to further building and improving its digital strategy is a strong testament to the importance it places on member satisfaction.”

Cortes-Maceda has worked with companies such as VMWare, Accenture and Sun Microsystems to help design and execute upon digital experience strategies. She holds a master’s degree in Human-Computer Interaction with Distinction from DePaul University, as well as a bachelor’s degree in International Business and Management from the University of Colorado.

“Consumer demand has evolved, and we are eager to leverage Razz’s expertise to help Bellco offer a digital experience in a smart, calculated way that exceeds members’ expectations and expands our reach to new members as well,” said John Rivera, Senior Vice President and Chief Retail Officer at Bellco.
